NOTICE:

The DMTF continues to receive information indicating that certain procurement documents issued by certain government agencies in Mexico, Brazil and, most recently, in Bolivia, contain a bid requirement for manufacturers to belong to the DMTF at a certain level of membership [Leadership or Board].

The DMTF does not endorse and specifically repudiates this language in any bid requirement, and has no connection with the procurement process of any government or private industry sector. The DMTF objects to the inclusion of such a clause in any commercial context or procurement setting. The DMTF has formally demanded the cessation of such practices by such government agencies, and requested that this requirement be removed from all government solicitations.

The DMTF, with more than 4,000 active members, is a not-for-profit open association of industry members dedicated to promoting enterprise and systems management and interoperability. DMTF standards and related documents may be reproduced for uses consistent with this purpose by members and non-members, provided that correct attribution is given. DMTF standards are designed to be technology neutral and platform independent.

Please contact me if you have questions regarding this notice.
